

Dear colleagues, dear friends, dear allies,

With the (non) festival Niemand kommt, alle sind dabei, we want to help us many artists and culture makers facing extreme financial hardship as possible by selling as many tickets as possible. This project was inspired by the Keinerkommt festival in Hamburg. If you would like to support us in this endeavor, spread the word about the (non) festival on your social media accounts, websites and newsletters. You will find visual material attached. Your support is greatly appreciated and urgently necessary! You and your institution can be included on our list of participants and (not) come by sending an email to info@niemandkommt.de.

If you have contact to well-known artists that would like to lend their support to this project and help it to gain additional attention, we would be very grateful if you could put us in touch.

With best wishes,
Sarah Rosenau, for the Niemand kommt team

No One's Coming, Everyone's Going The (Non) Festival of the Summer in Berlin. Solidarity Festival for Independent Artists and Culture Makers in Berlin Facing Extreme Financial Hardship #niemandkommt #allesinddabei

Peaches is going, Sasha Waltz & Guests and ci. toulalimnaios are going, Sharon Dodua Otoo is going, She She Pop are going, Kathrin Röggl is going and Berlin's entire independent arts community is going - and no one's coming: On July 24, 2020, the festival of the summer will take place in Berlin where a stunning amount of artists, ensembles and culture makers working in all fields will take part by not showing up. We're calling on everyone: show your solidarity! Donate: Buy tickets and show your support by (not) coming!

All income made from ticket sales and merchandise will be given to independent artists and culture makers in Berlin's independent arts community working in all disciplines who did not receive aid from Berlin's Soforthilfe II program and do not meet the requirements for any federal or state relief programs and thus have had little or no income for the past several months and, despite the fact that Berlin's cultural institutions are slowly opening, will not have any for some time to come. It is for them, those who have fallen through all the cracks in the system and can no longer cover their living costs, that Niemand kommt, alle sind dabei is being put on: a festival made by the community for the community. No artistic content is asked for as part of the application. The applications will be checked for completeness of the information provided. All donations will be distributed via a random drawing from the names of qualified applicants. The organizers hope to be able to provide € 1,000.00 to each qualified applicant whose name is drawn. You can apply to receive funds and find more information here.

And, once again, please donate: Buy tickets and make a contribution to preserving the diversity of Berlin's independent arts community. Regular price: € 22, additional prices: € 11, € 44 or € 95. Tickets are sold via our partner Reservix, the prices are subject to an additional one-time processing fee per order. Ticket sales are already underway!
